HARRISBURG (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower threw his prestige and support Monday behind the proposal to call a constitutional convention to rewrite the state constitution of 1874.

"... I believe that no project is more necessary to the welfare of our Commonwealth today, and in the decades to come, than our program to bring about a constitutional convention," Eisenhower wrote in a letter to Gov. Scrantom.

"Of all state constitutions, Pennsylvania's appears to be one of the most restrictive, one of the hardest to modernize, and one of the most destructive to state's rights and home rule."

State Bans Some Smoked Fish

HARRISBURG (AP) — The state Agriculture Department advised housewives, food wholesalers, retailers and processors to "destroy immediately" all smoked fish products from the Great Lakes region.

"We are taking this step to avoid the possibility of an outbreak in Pennsylvania of type E botulism such as occurred recently in Tennessee and in Kalamazoo, Mich.," said Delmar K. Myers, acting director of the department's bureau of foods and chemistry.

Shaft Drilled Toward Miners

BROISTEDT, Germany (AP) — Rescuers drilled an escape shaft at the rate of five feet an hour Monday to reach 3 men trapped in a flooded iron mine that became a grave for 40 others.

By nightfall the shaft had reached a depth of nearly 90 feet. The miners were in an air-pocket 259 feet below the surface.

PUC To Decide TV Cable Power

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Public Utility Commission ordered an inquiry Monday to determine whether it has jurisdiction over television cable charges and service.

The PUC cited a "growing need" to determine the question of its authority in this field.

63 Miners Freed

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — All 63 miners trapped 5,000 feet down in a gold mine near Carletonville reached the surface safely Monday.

The last group of 50 white and African miners was brought up late Monday night. Thirteen others had been freed earlier from the cage in which they were trapped for 12 hours underground after a mishap to the winding mechanism.

2 Flee Germany

LUECHOW, Germany (AP)—Two brothers escaped across the mined and barricaded East German frontier Monday night, but only after one of them lost a leg to a land mine.

West German border patrolmen said the two, 18 and 20 years old, crawled over the mined death strip toward the last barbed wire and concrete barricade separating them from West German territory.

Priest Ends Fast

NEW YORK (AP)—A Catholic priest Monday night ended a fast of more than three days after assurance that the city will crack down on the sale of smutty literature to children.

The priest, who had the support of a rabbi and a Protestant minister, was fasting to protest widespread sales of what he called "cesspool literature."

$1 Billion Profit

NEW YORK (AP)—General Motors Corp. reported Monday profits of $1,086,000,000 and sales of $11,681,000,000 for the nine months ended Sept. 30. They were the highest GM has reported for any comparable period.

Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Continued heavy demand for outstanding blue chips continued to push popular stock market averages into record high ground Monday but losers outnumbered gainers in the list as a whole. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.75 to a peak of 759.30. At 2 p.m. EST the Dow industrials had crossed the 760 mark, reading 761.45, but late profit taking cut back the gain which then stood at 5.54.

Delaware River Water Drops To Record Low

STROUDSBURG — The prolonged Indian summer drought brought the Delaware River to two record lows this week.

Robert Fish, deputy river master at the Milford gauging station, said the river stage in feet measured only 3.82 feet Monday. This broke the previous low of 3.83 feet set in August, 1952.

The river's stage in feet is the depth of water measured in the middle of the channel at Milford.

He also estimated Sunday's average river flow at 620 cubic feet per second. He said this is the lowest reading at the Milford station since the record low of 412 c.f.s. was set in August, 1954.

Sunday's volume of water was the lowest recorded during the present drought. The previous low for this month was 865 c.f.s.

Below Minimum

He said the 620 c.f.s. was 905 c.f.s. below the "desirable" minimum flow of 1,525 c.f.s. at Milford set by a 1954 U.S. Supreme Court decision regulating New York City use of Delaware River water.

New York City has received no water from its two upper Delaware River reservoirs in the past two weeks. Water in the city's Neversink and Pepacton reservoirs stood yesterday at a combined percentage of only 4.5 per cent of capacity.

Neversink held only 0.3 per cent of its normal capacity of 35.5 billion gallons. Pepacton's normal capacity of 143.7 billion gallons was down to 4.9 per cent.

Fish said that rain falling in the river's basin Monday ranged from a trace to .28 of an inch. He said the average rainfall at the nine stations in the river's upper watershed averaged .09 of an inch.

Pocono Forest Fire

While the rest of the north-east United States struggled with drought, Monroe County's worst forest fire of the year continued to smoulder yesterday while the estimate of woods destroyed dropped to between 450 and 500 acres from 700 acres.

Gerald Robinson, district forester, said last night that men are still at the scene of the blaze near Big Pocono Mountain to control smouldering embers.

Robinson said the fire was mostly extinguished by midnight Sunday. He revised the figure from the original estimate of 700 acres burned.

Robinson reported no other fires yesterday.

George Raish, fire inspector for the State Dept. of Forest and Waters, said the blaze was "deliberately set."

Too Little Rain

Despite the fact that morning showers left a trace of rain yesterday in the Poconos, severe drought conditions still prevail.

William Hagerty, U.S. Weather Bureau reporter in Stroudsburg, said the amount of rain that fell yesterday was not enough to measure.

The weather bureau at Scranton - Wilkes-Barre Airport in Avoca reported the showers produced .01 of an inch of rain there.

Meteorologist Don Thompson at the airport said the rain increased the total for the month of October to .03. With three days remaining in the month, the possibility still exists that the record of .08 of an inch in October, 1924, may be broken.

Great Lakes Drop

Harley Lawhead, chief of the Great Lakes hydraulics branch in the North Central Division office, Corps of Engineers, reported that the level of the Great Lakes has dropped because of the 1963 drought.

He said the surface levels of Lakes Michigan and Huron are a foot lower than a year ago. Erie is down 1/4 of a foot, and Lakes Superior and Ontario are down 1/4 foot.

Lakes, rivers and streams also are down in Wisconsin and other points in the Midwest. The water flow in the Wisconsin River, probably the most important in that state's economy, has dropped 50 per cent.

Fires burned out an estimated total of 800 acres of woodland in Ohio over the weekend.

Compromise Rights Bill Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration put together Monday a new civil rights package that may end the House Judiciary Committee's long fight over the legislation.

At a White House meeting with Democratic leaders of the House, President Kennedy outlined a program that apparently won over some committee members who have been holding out for a subcommittee bill going well beyond administration proposals.

The House Republican leadership has been in active negotiation with the administration over the new proposals and is reported to be in general agreement with them.

The success of Kennedy's attempt to weld a bipartisan base for the bill will be determined Tuesday when the committee votes on the subcommittee bill.

The administration regards the subcommittee version as so drastic that it could not be passed in the House.

Details on what the President now is proposing were lacking, but it was learned it will include all the administration's original proposals although in altered form in some cases.

FLAMES OF DEATH—Shocked onlookers gazed as the figure of Buddhist monk Thieu My is enveloped in flames in front of the Roman Catholic cathedral in Saigon, South Viet Nam. Buddhist Miracle Fails SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A prediction that the sun would miraculously revolve in the sky drew large crowds Monday into streets near the Saigon central market and U.S. Embassy combat police quickly dispersed the sun watchers.

According to the prediction, which has been making the rounds of this nervous and superstitious capital since Friday, the abnormal motion of the sun would be sign of a Buddhist miracle.

The watchers—office workers, shoppers and strollers—gathered by the hundreds at street corners and traffic circles in the downtown area.

Police were especially alert or trouble because of Sunday's flaming suicide of a Buddhist monk in front of the Roman Catholic cathedral, and riot squads sprang into action. The crowds dispersed quickly however and no violence was reported.

Officials said that they felt more serious matters were at stake than sun-watching. One said he believed the superstitious rumor had been spread as a test, to see how fast crowds could be assembled at key places in the city.

He said he felt Saigon's Buddhist and student underground may be planning major demonstrations.

The view was corroborated in a 21-page document reported

German Beauty Causes Scandal In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — A demand that the government tell all about a mysterious German beauty, said to have moved in high political circles here before being yanked back to Germany, sounded Monday on the eve of the Robert G. Baker investigation.

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, demanded that the administration publicize the circumstances surrounding the sudden departure in August 1963 of the statuesque brunette, identified by the West German Defense Ministry as Elly Rometsch, 27.

"Members of Congress and the public are entitled to know whether there was any element of security violation concerned in this speedy and hitherto unpublicized deportation," Gross said in a House speech to which there was no immediate Democratic reaction.

Baker Link

Gross linked the case of the German woman with the Senate investigation opening Tuesday, of the complex outside business interests of Baker, Ontario Senate page boy who rose to power as secretary of Senate Democrats and then suddenly resigned under fire.

However, the doings of Mrs. Rometsch are not expected to figure in the Baker inquiry, at least in the early stages.

One allegation being looked into is that Baker used influence to press big defense contractors to install machines vending coffee, sandwiches and other items and that he was heavily interested in the company owning the machines.

Baker has denied pressure tactics.

Unconfirmed stories going the rounds were that some members of "the Bobby Baker set" were on good terms with Mrs.

Rometsch. She also was said to have been seen often at the Quorum Club, of which Baker was a charter member and which has been an elegant gathering place for lobbyists and members of Congress. However employees available at the club Monday insisted they had never heard of her.

Mrs. Rometsch came to Washington April 6, 1961. Her husband, a sergeant, had been assigned to a West German military mission here.

Called Home

In Bonn a spokesman for the West German Defense Ministry said the sergeant had been recalled home in August 1963 on the basis of intelligence reports about his wife's personal behavior. She also went back to Germany.

Officials said her departure followed a quiet investigation by the FBI. They said she was not deported.

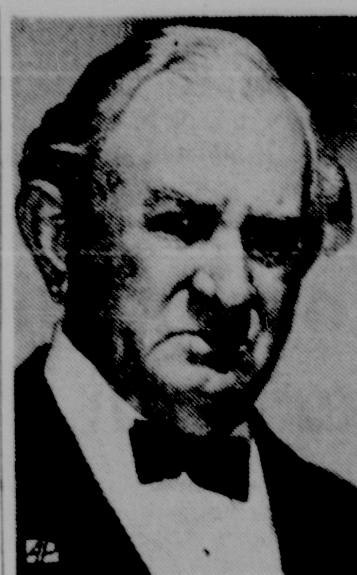

The German Defense Ministry spokesman said the woman had not had any contacts with persons of the Soviet bloc and "the whole thing seems harmless."

Since returning home, the spokesman said, the couple have separated, and the husband is suing for divorce.

Employe Probe

Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., who introduced a resolution for an investigation of congressional employees' conduct, will be the first witness Tuesday before the Rules Committee, named to conduct the Baker inquiry.

Clark Mollenhoff, prize-winning newsman told of the case of the German woman in a story in The Des Moines Register and other papers Saturday. He said Williams would spell out the story before the committee.

Sen. Tom Connally

Senator Connally Dead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Old Tom Connally of Texas, one of the most colorful, powerful and razor-tongued senators of them all, died Monday at the age of 86.

The former chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, who had lived quietly in Washington since he quit the Senate in 1953, had been ailing for years. His wife was at his bedside when he died.

Tall, courtly, with his bow tie and rumpled suits, his careless, flowing hair, his wit that could hit the mark as neatly as an icepick or as cruelly as a meat axe — Tom Connally seemed born for the Senate.

It's surprising to recall that he ever had any other life, that he had spent 10 years in the House, that he had served in both the Spanish-American War and World War I, although he never got overseas either time.

Humorist

"I have been in more wars and done less fighting than any other American," he once said.

Connally saved his fighting for the Senate, where he spent 24 often tempestuous years, usually attacking the Republicans, sometimes pouring it on his own Democratic party and occasionally spanking the "striped britches" State Department.

His oratorical flights are out of style, but even in cold print, they have an effectiveness lacking in the pallid words so often used now.

Here's Connally, arguing that this country must join the United Nations and seeking to shame those opposed:

"They know that the League of Nations was slaughtered here in this chamber." At this point he pulled off his glasses and pointed to the rear of the Senate. "Can't you see the blood? There it is on the wall."

Defended Wilson

Or in defense of President Wilson:

"When the history of this republic shall be written, Woodrow Wilson's titanic figure will tower above the puny pignies who now bark at his memory as Pike's Peak towers above the fog of an Arkansas swamp."

Or, if you would sample his wit, here's Connally squashing a foe in debate:

"The senator should approach these matters with an open mind instead of an open mouth."

When he retired, Lyndon B. Johnson, then a senator but now vice president, pointed out that Connally had fought for soil conservation, for rural electrification for small business, and, since he was from Texas, for the oil industry.

"A statesman who belongs to the ages," Johnson said of Connally, with the easy sweep befitting a Texan and senator.

Classic Battles

His arguments with the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, the Republican leader, were classics in political knife-throwing.

Peace Talks Start Today

MARRAKECH, Morocco (AP) — The government said Monday that Moroccan troops have moved into the Algerian-held Sahara, pushing close to the ore center of Tindouf. The move was seen as a bid to strengthen the hand of King Hassan II at peace talks Tuesday in Mali.

Fear mounted among Western diplomats that the undeclared frontier war between Algeria and Morocco might turn into a conflict between East and West. Western embassies in North Africa have dispatched alarming reports of sizable arrivals of Soviet weapons in Algerian ports aboard Cuban and Egyptian freighters.

There were some reports that the United Arab Republic was sending three shiploads of parachute troops recently withdrawn from Yemen.

Egyptian Troops

In Cairo, official papers lent credence to the reports by publishing the dispatches from abroad that Egyptian troops and arms were heading for Algeria. Diplomats in Cairo said President Gamal Abdel Nasser may be sending arms but they doubted he was sending troops.

Both Morocco and Algeria openly seek peace. King Hassan is reported to have assured Western diplomats his immediate concern is to obtain a cease-fire in the Sahara where his troops nevertheless were reported pushing forward.

U.S. Ambassador John Ferguson was among those received by the king. The American diplomat expressed the U.S. government's hope that a cease-fire will be speedily imposed.

But while Ferguson was with the king, a terse Moroccan communiqué announced that its troops were eight miles from Tindouf, an area of important iron ore and coal deposits so far little exploited. Tindouf shows on international maps as being about 60 miles inside Algeria.

Moroccan Claim

Morocco has long claimed the area as its territory, saying it was artificially attached to Algeria by France when both Morocco and Algeria were under French domination.

The Moroccan announcements added to the tension preceding the four-power peace conference set for Bamako, the capital of Mali.

Beside Hassan and President Ahmed Ben Bella of Algeria, the participants for the talks included Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia and President Modibo Keita of Mali.

Socialist Contamination

In addition to the frontier problem, Morocco and Algeria have conflicting ideologies. The Moroccan monarchy fears what officials describe as "contamination" by the Socialist "people's republic" of Algeria.

The Moroccan claim Algeria is clearly backed by the Soviet Union and the United Arab Republic in its conflict with Morocco. The kingdom would like to see the West line up on its side.

Moroccan arguments against Soviet and Cuban influence in Algeria find a sympathetic ear among Western ambassadors.

Fulbright Defends Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's foreign aid program came up for Senate debate Monday with an administration spokesman warning that any drastic cuts in the $4.2-billion bill might endanger national security.

This note was sounded by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, who urged a re-examination of the program, but not this year.

Another Democrat, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, denounced the current authorization bill as shocking waste and "a body blow to the most vital defense weapon the American people possess, namely, their own economy."

The debate is expected to continue most of the week, with other foreign aid critics joining Morse in a drive to cut the program to the $3.5 billion approved by the House.

Billion Cut

The House action cut a billion from the $4.5-billion figure submitted by Kennedy for the fiscal year ending next June 30. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee raised the authorization to $4.2 billion, which Fulbright has said is in line with the recommendations of a presidential committee headed by Gen. Lucius D. Clay.

The Clay committee called for a tightening of the aid program, and Fulbright told the Senate in opening debate on the bill that the administration should undertake a full-scale re-examination and "profound reappraisal" of foreign aid before submitting next year's program.

"We cannot tear up the blueprints before us and create a new structure on the floor of the Senate," Fulbright said. "Furthermore, I believe we might seriously jeopardize the national security if we were to slash deeply at the bill without reference to the existing framework obligations and objectives."

Fulbright argued that the Communist bloc "has been fought to better than a standstill" under the foreign aid program, despite its shortcomings.

Morse Attack

Morse criticized the bill as "a hodgepodge of meaningless compromises" and said its adoption will perpetuate the shocking waste and gross inefficiency which has characterized for years the administration of American foreign aid, both military and economic."

State May Order Vice Investigation

HARRISBURG (AP) — Atty. Gen. Walter E. Alessandrini said Monday he was contemplating the possibility of ordering a grand jury investigation of vice in Allegheny County.

His comment came in the aftermath of last week's massive state police vice raid in Pittsburgh.

Alessandrini said he was considering the move because "there appears to be a breakdown of law enforcement" in the county.

In Pittsburgh, Mayor Joseph M. Barr had no immediate comment to make on Alessandrini's comment.

Dist. Atty. Edward C. Boyle, who is seeking re-election this year, said only that Alessandrini "can study the possibility of anything."

And the city's public safety director, James Dillon, said that he did not believe there has been any general breakdown of law enforcement in the city.

However, he added, that he thought the vice situation was one area of law enforcement which has not been "investigated fully."

These developments came in the aftermath of a weekend report that many prominent names were found on alleged customer lists seized in the raid.

Capt. W. J. Stanton, chief of the state police detectives, said the names came from the fields of public life, business and sports, but did not disclose any of them.

"It is clear that this situation could not have existed without the knowledge or acquiescence of some of the officials and law enforcement officers."

He declined to say whether he would supersede local prosecutors in the event of a grand jury probe.

Philly Firemen Win Injunction

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The city has been enjoined—temporarily—from firing any more firemen for alleged political activity.

An injunction was issued Monday by Judge Charles A. Waters of Common Pleas Court. It permits the firemen to continue their picketing for more pay and other benefits.

The injunction also forbids the Democratic city administration of Mayor James Tate to withhold the pay of any of the 59 firemen already suspended with notices that they would be dismissed.

Waters, a Republican, issued the order after suit was brought by counsel for Local 22, City Fire Fighters Association, AFL-CIO.

Canadian Sees Another Deal

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — A top Canadian government official has indicated his country may be on the threshold of another trade agreement with a Communist country.

Paul Martin, Canadian secretary of state for foreign affairs said here Saturday night officials planned to negotiate with a European Iron Curtain nation over a possible trade agreement similar to the recent Russian wheat sale.

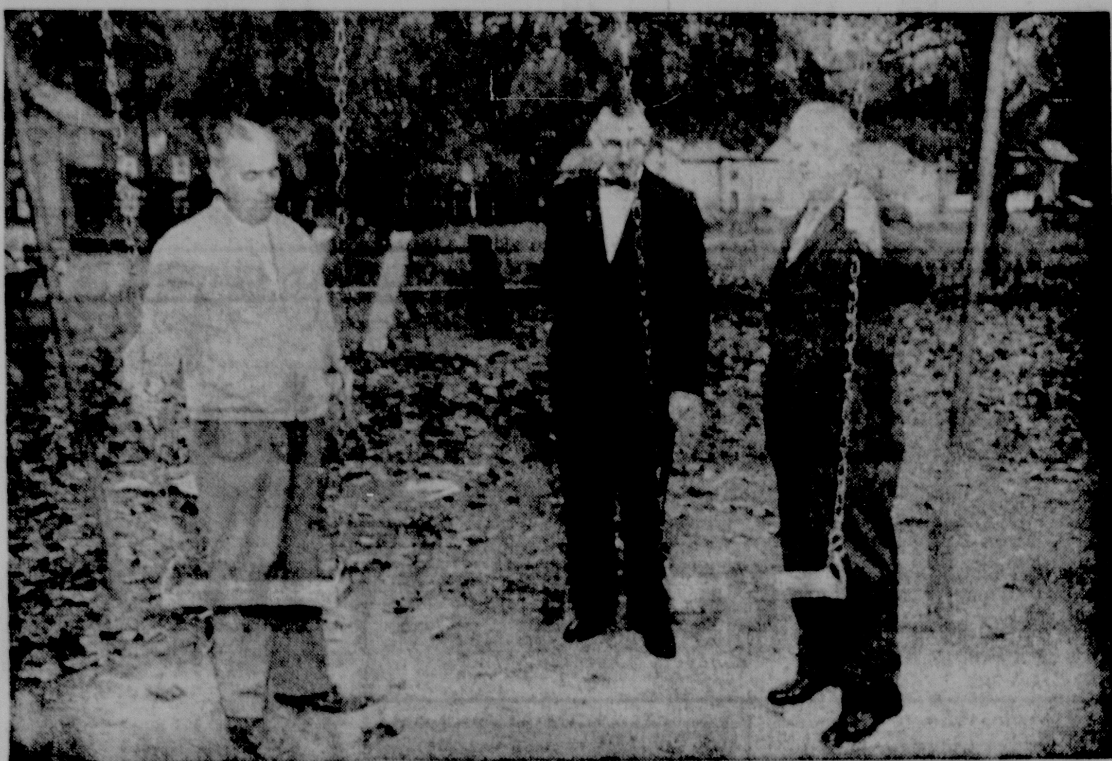

In an address concluding a three-day Lehigh University centennial convocation, Martin defended Canada's trade agreements with Red China and other Communist bloc nations as one way to "relieve world tension."

Civil Rights Stand Explained

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A presidential aide said Sunday the Kennedy administration is doing its utmost to push through strong civil rights legislation.

Commissioners Give $100 For Flagler Run Project

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Park Commission met yesterday with the county commissioners.

John R. Lesoine, chairman of the board of Commissioners, presented a $100 check from the Pocono Forestry Assn. to the park commission. The check was given to the county to be used in the Flagler Run Park.

In other business the playground on Third St. in Stroudsburg was discussed and then the members of the park commission viewed the site.

The park commission has set a target date of this spring for the opening of the play area. They told the county commissioners that they would begin drawing plans for the project and make a suggested list of articles to be purchased for the operation of the playground.

Also discussed was the Flagler Run Park. The county commissioners said they would request a meeting with the Water Authority. Attending the meeting will be, in addition to the county commissioners, members of the park commission and the water authority.

It is believed that following this meeting the use of land, now owned by the water authority, will be determined.

Price criticized what he called the "lack of concern on the part of authorities" for homes and businesses which have suffered due to new highway construction.

Cites Tax Assessments

"It appears that tax assessments should be adjusted when values of property and business have been lessened," he said.

He also charged that the county commissioners have shown no interest in organizations that have tried to create jobs in this area by bringing in new industry.

He said the commissioners are part of "the team" that should be interested in a healthier Monroe County.

"The county home is worthwhile, certainly," Price said, "but it benefits a very small portion of the citizens. Why shouldn't the same effort be given to new industries, new jobs, helping the 'displaced businesses' on the outmoded highways and the dozen other areas of county economics? Is it because of a lack of interest or a lack of time? Both should be sacrificed to return the faith the voters have placed in them by their votes."

Price Says Commissioners' Job Takes Full-Time Effort

MOUNTAINHOME — John Price, Republican candidate for Monroe County commissioner, promised last night that he will devote his full time to the office if elected next Tuesday.

Price, speaking at a meeting of the Barrett Township Republican Women's Council at the Barrett Elementary Center, said:

"The future of Monroe County is tremendous. The economic growth that we have experienced in the last 10 years is just the threshold of the potential this county has before it."

"That is why the role of the county commissioners is so important. It's no longer a case of a 'couple of the boys' getting together twice a week to handle the affairs of the county."

"It requires fulltime effort and I'm prepared to give the job that time. The $4,200 salary is sufficient pay for me to give the county a full work week."

Price listed as his qualifications for the post a progressive attitude, the ability to meet with the "man in the street" to discuss his problems and suggestions, a successful business background, strength to buck political or self-interest pressure groups, honesty and the realization that the public wants to be informed of the plans for the future and the reasons for decisions made to handle today's problems.

Price criticized what he called the "lack of concern on the part of authorities" for homes and businesses which have suffered due to new highway construction.

Mrs. Slutter Speaks

Mrs. Ruth Slutter, candidate for prothonotary and clerk of courts, reviewed her qualifications for the office including her graduation from business school, her experience as a legal secretary and operation of her own accounting business for five years in Stroudsburg.

"I have asked my opponent to list his qualifications, but so far he has not done so," she told the group. She referred to Frank J. Smith, former Monroe County highways superintendent, who is the Democratic candidate for the post.

"This is not a law enforcement position," she said. "My opponents would have the public believe that I would have an active part in law enforcement. This is a job involving hard work requiring knowledge of handling court work, issuing, filing and preserving valuable papers as well as keeping records of many important transactions."

Co. Commissioners Renew Children's Aid Contract

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County commissioners yesterday approved renewing its contract with Monroe County Children's Aid Society for another year.

The commissioners met yesterday with CAS officials for the annual meeting when the entire CAS program was gone over so that the commissioners know the facts of the year. The meeting was held in the CAS office on Sarah St., Stroudsburg.

The estimated income for CAS this year is $83,548.10. This money comes from three sources. They are:

- Community Chest, $12,275;
- Monroe County Institution District, $68,454.19 and from the children's parents, $3,000.

The annual report showed 45 children in boarding homes and that for them the Monroe County Institution District paid per child the following costs: $1.71 per day for board, 30 cents per day for clothing, 12 cents per day for medical care, and 92 cents per day for administrative costs.

The report showed four children in institutions and one on the state list. The costs for them is as follows:

- Louresmont School, $125 per month for one child; Our Lady of Fatima Institution, $3.50 per day for two children; Wiley House, $48 per week for one child.

On the protective list are 55 children and The Institution District is paying 92 cents per day for administrative costs.

The report also showed two children on a post placement counseling basis with the administrative costs being paid by CID.

The County Institution District is also paying the following allowances for children in schools:

- To children six through 11 years, 50 cents per month; children 12 through 13 years, 75 cents per month and children 14 years through high school, $1 per month.

Charles Jones, executive secretary of CAS, also presented the monthly report to the commissioners.

The monthly report showed a caseload at the beginning of September as 139 and 137 at the end of the month.

The location of the children showed 54 in placement and 83 in homes. A breakdown is as follows: 45 in boarding foster homes; one in a private foster home; one in private boarding study home; one in an out-of-county adoption home, five in institutions, one in Hershey School; 70 in protective homes; six family counseling conducted and seven post placement counseling held.

Exchangers Hear Talk On Gambling; Honor Youth

EAST STROUDSBURG — Former Assistant U.S. Attorney Phillip Williams said last night that because of the interstate commerce clause federal law enforcement officers are more effective in stopping gambling activities than local enforcement agencies.

"When a gambler violates any of the provisions of the interstate clause federal authorities have the power to make an arrest. The federal government also requires gamblers to purchase a gambling tax stamp and they use this as an enforcement procedure," he said.

Williams, now a Stroudsburg Attorney, spoke to the Exchange Club of East Stroudsburg in connection with Crime Prevention Week. He related some of his experiences in the U.S. Attorney's office for the middle district and discussed law enforcement at the federal level.

He outlined the boundaries of the 32-county middle district which maintains headquarters in Scranton. The district, encompassing Monroe County, goes south to Maryland, north to the New York State border and west to State College, Pa.

The Exchange Club honored Robert J. Corby, son of Mr.

and Mrs. Joseph Corby of 117 Analomink St., East Stroudsburg, as its Boy of the Month for October.

Corby is president of the senior class at East Stroudsburg Area Joint High School. He was also president of his junior class. He is a member of the prom and play committees, Athletic Council, Student Council, and has been active in intramural track, swimming, wrestling, track, and football, being co-captain of the football team in the 10th and 12th grades.

At Last! New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair!

There is now an excellent chance that you can stop your hair loss and grow more hair, if your hair loss is caused or affected by the discharge of sebum from the sebaceous glands in the hair follicles, and not by male pattern baldness.

Researchers recently found that human sebum (so-called natural oil) can be so toxic that it takes the hair off of test animals in 10 days. It was also found that sebum contains Squalene, Oleic and Linoleic acids which are "deplorative," or hair removing agents!

These discoveries further confirmed the findings of a Houston firm of laboratory consultants, who have been developing a revolutionary new concept in scalp treatment to remove and control this harmful "hair removing" discharge. Their new method has now been developed to the point where it is not only stopping hair loss... but is really growing hair... in cases not involving male pattern baldness.

Independent C.P.A. examination of results shows that of 550 people who tried this new method for 32 days starting in January, 1962, 74.5% reported positive results by stopping or decreasing their hair loss; and, of this number 43.4% also reported... new hair growth!

Because of overwhelming results like this, the developer, Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., of Houston, Texas now offers a 32 day "no-risk" trial. If they believe their method will help you, they invite you to try it for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself.

Naturally, they could not offer this no-risk trial unless their method worked. However, as you can well imagine, it is impossible to satisfy everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But how can any man or woman be sure what is actually causing their hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss. It has been observed by the Loesch Co. that hair removing sebum can also "run in your family."

Regardless of what may be causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have hair (or at least some fuzz) on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair... now is the time to do something about it, before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc. will supply you with treatment for 32 days, at their risk, if they believe the treatment will help you. Just fill out and send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered promptly, by mail and without obligation. —Adv.

Community Chest Total At $75,555

STROUDSBURG — The desert meetings of the Monroe County Community Chest are over but the Community Chest campaign will continue until all potential contributors have been contacted and the total goal is reached.

"Hopefully, before Thanksgiving," Ralph Reppert, campaign chairman, told the workers at the report meeting held last night at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

At that time $10,632.22 in additional contributions were turned in, bringing the combined total to $75,555.48. This leaves approximately $38,000 still to be acquired in order to assure the continuing full services of the 13 member agencies.

"You are not just turning in money; you are assuring the nursing care for the sick, Scout activities for the young people, the YMCA, the hospital, the Salvation Army — all of the services for yourselves and for your neighbors," Jesse Flory told the workers.

Reppert, using the word "Community," broke it down to "unity" and that in turn to "Un I": "You and I working in unity will put the Community Chest drive over the top," he promised.

Dessert and a cake reading "Thanks For Work Well Done" were provided by the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

The Nightwits, a barber shop quartette composed of Dayton Frantz, Willard Tyreman, John Smith and Graydon Frailey, sang a group of songs.

Praying For Rain

Praying for rain is an ancient and world-wide practice, but it is not always successful.

Fortunately, Stroudsburg has one clergyman who knows how to do it. The Rev. Charles A. Park, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, successfully used the plea for rain in the Book of Common Prayer Sunday.

In part, that prayer says: "... send us we beseech Thee, this our necessity, such moderate rain and showers that we may receive the fruits of the earth to our comfort and to Thy honor..."

At about midnight Sunday, a very "moderate" shower of almost unmeasurable amount fell on the Pocono Mountains.

It was the first precipitation since Oct. 3 when .02 inches of rain fell. It wasn't much, but it came at the best possible moment.

More than 75 volunteer firemen, outdoor sportsmen, and foresters had been fighting the biggest forest fire in Monroe County during this year near Big Pocono Mountain.

The fire, which George Raish, state forest inspector, called "deliberately set," had burned an estimated 700 acres when firefighters still working and watching in the darkness felt the first moisture from the sky in 25 days of continuous drought.

It wasn't much, but it helped to put out the fire near Big Pocono Mountain and it wet down crisp dry leaves and woods all over the Poconos. A few more drops fell Monday.

So it seems that the ancient art of praying for rain is not dead, has not lost its usefulness.

We thank Father Park, and anyone else who prayed for rain and urge them to pray for more.

Let Them Drink Champagne

Free Champagne?

It's available at a Manhattan restaurant which began serving champagne yesterday to conserve water during the Indian summer drought which has cut New York City water reservoirs to 30 per cent of capacity.

Of course the restaurant is making the most of a good gimmick. In a note to customers, forced to drink champagne in their water glasses, the management said:

"With apologies of the management, during the water shortage, champagne will serve as a substitute. Please bear with us."

No complaints were reported.

Comment Of The Day

"When we say that your defense is our defense we mean it. We have proved it in the past. We will continue to demonstrate it in the future..."

"Does the airlift of an armored division mean the withdrawal of American troops from Germany? The answer is no—the opposite is the case. Because of this airlift we have a seventh division temporarily in Europe.

"It was thus the testing of a new and important additional capability which strengthens the military partnership between the United States and Europe."

—Secretary of State Dean Rusk in a speech at Frankfurt, Germany, Sunday in which he sought to quiet German fears of withdrawal of 250,000 American troops in Europe.

Temples Of Baalbek

BAALBEK, Lebanon — One of my more irksome eccentricities is that I insist on telling people things they know more about than I do. On the drive to the temples of Baalbek, which is the ancient Heliopolis, I briefed two of Lebanon's most knowledgeable historians on life in their capital city of Beirut, which we had just left.

"Beirut," I informed editors-in-chief Selim Nassar of As Safa'a and Georges Ska'af of Al Jayda, "is a digestive town. It can swallow anything. Everything you can find anywhere in the world goes on there. It is where the oil-rich sheikhs and kings of all Arab countries come to cut loose."

The Arab editors accepted this politely, as I had been sure they would. But two other passengers in the car refused to be so complacent. Dr. Ahmad Maahgoub, deposed Prime Minister of Sudan, said he proposed to test me on how much I had really learned about Lebanon, where he is spending much of his exile from a military coup. My wife, Ymelda, entered an immediate challenge.

"How," she demanded, "does a man with four wives and a hundred concubines cut loose?"

"I would like to know that myself," said Ex-P. M. Maahgoub. "What could he possibly do that would be considered cutting loose?"

Ymelda regarded the exiled chief of state with too obviously heightened interest. She asked him if he spoke with authority.

"Not me," protested Dr. Maahgoub. "I have neither the means nor the constitution."

"You look quite fit to me," said Ymelda.

"Alas," signed Dr. Maahgoub, "appearances, like many other things in this country, are deceitful. They kept me in a damp prison on bad food that ruined my physique for seven months before they threw me out of my country." He sighed again: "My cousin was my jailer."

Naturally, these interruptions did not deter me from parading my knowledge.

"Beirut," I resumed, "has more nightlife than any other city I have ever visited. You can gamble, and see wilder shows than in Las Vegas. Most Arab rulers feel they must put on a great show of virtue in their own countries because they usually set themselves up as the spiritual as well as temporal leaders. They stay home quietly with their consorts..."

"I still don't see what else they could do to cut loose," said Ymelda, on her non-deniable single track.

"They drink," I said. "They pretend to be rabid drunks at home, but they come to Beirut and get lashed up. Another reason they like to come here: Lebanon shows the way to their dream goal, which is Arab unity."

"Lebanon," Dr. Maahgoub said darkly, "is for Arab unity, provided it's not in it. Two years ago I amazed everybody at the United Nations by predicting in New York what the new president of Lebanon would say in Beirut ten hours before he said it. I predicted that President Emir Fouad Chehab would make an impassioned pitch for Arab unity at his inaugural, then undo it all by adding in noble tones, 'My paramount duty is to support the entity and independence of Lebanon.'"

I thought that Editors Ska'af and Nassar would protest this, but instead they laughed indulgently. By this time we had reached Baalbek which historians think was probably founded by the ancient Canaanites. Mr. Nassar introduced me to a man just coming out the temple gate. He didn't seem to understand English, so I felt safe in informing Ymelda that he was a typical desert Arab.

"I'd hardly say that," said Editor Nassar. "He's Jacques Charrier, Brigitte Bardot's second husband."

I informed my companions once again that you can see everybody and everything in Lebanon; that it's a land where everybody argues politics with a great show of heat, which however, seldom bursts into fire. I asked Ymelda if there was anything else she'd like me to tell her about Lebanon.

"Yes," she said, "how do those sheikhs who come here have the energy to cut loose?"

"Wait, Barry... Let ME Tackle Him!"

2 Lady Candidates

There was a time when women in the world of men spoke only when spoken to. Not today, though. The mis-named weaker sex is getting up on its high heels and voicing a strong opinion whether it be on knitting, business or politics.

It's been a long time since Susan B. Anthony wagged her tongue for women. But you can hear echoes of the fighter for female equality chirping in the Poconos.

Two gals battling for the fair sex as well as their young political lives are Jeannette Batory, Republican candidate for Monroe County register and recorder, and Mrs. Ruth Slutter, GOP aspirant for prothonotary.

The latest campaign for political office in Monroe was going along somewhat quietly until Mrs. Batory and Mrs.

Slutter decided to lower the boom. First the incumbent, Mrs. Batory, took a pot shot at her opponent, "nice guy" Nelson Westbrook, a Democrat.

In equally efficient feminine manner, Mrs. Slutter, at the same GOP political session, threw a curve at Frank Smith, the Demo choice for the post.

The print was hardly dry in Thursday's paper when Mrs. Slutter renewed her attack on Smith, former head of the county highway department.

As a counter punch, Mrs. Batory, a well known leader in community affairs says she's a "nice woman," too, just to keep the battle of the sexes more even.

The race between Mrs. Batory and Westbrook shapes up as "the" battle of candidates in this general election. Both candidates are equipped with affable personalities, charitable instincts, and business sense beyond reproach.

Even a betting man will not wager on the outcome. It should be that close, too. But we wonder, if the Susan B. Anthony fair won't touch the hearts of even some Democrats when election day rolls around.

Mrs. Slutter's verbal offense against Smith may not carry the weight intended by the challenge. Smith is a solid Democratic worker who plugged hard to get party members into office.

His ability to corral "grass roots" ballots in the county has established him as one of the key men in the Demo vote-grabbing setup.

Regardless of the outcome of the Mrs. Batory-Westbrook duel, and the Mrs. Slutter-Smith foray, it can be said that this is no longer a man's world—especially in Monroe County.

The Pennsylvania Story

Political Palaver

By Mason Denison
HARRISBURG — The point has just about been reached where it's no longer safe to talk to a public officeholder if you're a politician—and that criteria really skews it down to an amazing few!

This heart-rending appraisal must be drawn if the antics of Pennsylvania's political blokes on both sides of the aisle are to be taken seriously or without benefit of numerous grains of salt.

Specifically at the moment we're referring to the great and almost unbelievable ruckus that has been raised by pious Democratic brethren of the Keystone State over the fact that Governor Scranton (a Republican no less) has condoned inviting state employees to join a somewhat loose as yet and bucolic organization known as the Pennsylvania Republican Club.

It will be recalled that when he learned such a dashing organization as the PRC had opened its rolls to Republican jobholders, Democratic Generalissimo Otis B. Morse IV (or is it the 5th?) hustled into the street in great pother, great indignation—and unquestionably great frustration, to bewail the move as shocking, horrendous, unprecedented, etc.

Lesser lights within the Democratic family circle similarly hustled into their respective streets wherever they were throughout the state to join Mr. Morse in bewailing the fact that GOP state payrollers were going to be clobbered and forced to join the mighty club.

Via the U.S. mails Mr. Morse dispatched a glorious letter to none other than U.S. Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy down in Washington (he's still Attorney General, isn't he?) to protest this appalling violation of the 98th amendment and to ask for—no less—a probe.

Certainly Mr. Kennedy has more important things to do (that's Robert—not John). For example the other day down in Texas Adlai Stevenson, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations got bumped on the noggin during an anti-UN demonstration, which certainly is more important for the U.S. Attorney General to look into than this Pennsylvania Republican Club thing!

Nevertheless, Mr. Morse and his aides have gotten quite excited over this latest GOP gem—which seemingly is somewhat absurd at this early point.

We say "at this early point" for the simple reason that Mr. Morse has no proof that the PRC actually is going to be an evasion of the Hatch Act—in fact Mr. Scranton and his industrial press relations department have assured one and all that they may join the great order if they wish to; that there will be no job losses, demotions or head shrinkings if they don't.

Under such circumstances there seems little—in fact nothing—to squawk about at the moment.

Until there is evidence of coercion, threat to remove their sleeping—during—office—hours privilege, etc., from the moochers at the public trough for failure to join, it is impossible to see where Mr. Morse and his colleagues have an elephant tusk to stand on.

Answers To Arguments On Constitution Revision

Argument: We'll get big city rule with a new constitution. Answers: We must have fair and uniform representation in Pennsylvania.

A. Fair representation reapportionment would more likely favor the suburbs, now badly under-represented, not the cities. B. Is it fair for Forest County's 5,000 population to have a voice as strong as one Bucks County suburban district of 155,000?

C. A new constitution might put enforcement teeth in present state constitution "requirements" for reapportionment after every census.

WASHINGTON Congressmen probers looking into the explosive situation in South Vietnam have returned with some serious doubts about who is running the U.S. embassy in Saigon.

While Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge is supposed to be in charge of operations there, members of a House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee headed by Representative Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., discovered in their on-the-spot investigation that U.S. Minister-Counsel William C. Trueheart appears to be calling the shots.

The legislators unexpectedly caught Trueheart, the No.

Who's Top Man?

2 State Department officials in Saigon for the past two years, frantically signaling Lodge not to discuss sensitive questions raised by the committeemen during their briefing in the U.S. embassy.

While sitting strategically behind the legislators, Trueheart was sighted several times waving his hands furiously or shaking his head "no" when Lodge began discussing differences between his staff, the military, and the Central Intelligence Agency.

"A number of times when Ambassador Lodge began to tell us something important he either stopped or changed the subject when Trueheart began waving his hands," Representative William Murphy, D-Ill., reported to members of the full House Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Trueheart and John M. Mecklin, who heads up the 21-man U.S. Information Agency staff in Saigon, spent their time channeling the legislators to briefing by U.S. civilian officials strongly biased against President Diem.

The lawmakers also learned that Trueheart, a former State Department intelligence official, had a major role in the sudden recall of John Richardson, the CIA's mission chief in Saigon.

Richardson, one of the outstanding CIA agents, clashed sharply with Trueheart and Mecklin over the CIA's responsibilities and his support of President Diem.

According to South Vietnam government sources, Trueheart and Mecklin were the ringleaders behind the abortive attempt by a small group of USIA and State Department officials to oust the Diem regime two months ago.

The legislators, who will issue a report supporting Diem this week, reportedly were unable to confirm Trueheart and Mecklin's connection with the Diem ouster attempt. However, they were able to document that these two officials were the source of a number of anti-Diem stories leaked to U.S. reporters in Saigon.

Inside Story — Administration insiders say that Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge was summoned to Washington to counteract the anticipated criticism of U.S. policy in Vietnam by the Zablocki subcommittee.

He is scheduled to go before Congress to rally support for the administration's new policy of "staged" military and political disengagement from South Vietnam.

The military phase of the new policy was outlined in the recent White House statement issued following the mission to Vietnam of Defense Secretary McNamara and General Maxwell Taylor, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. They reported that the U.S. should be able to withdraw most of its 14,000 military advisers by 1966.

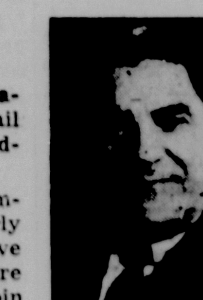

The political aspect of this policy is just now becoming evident in a series of recent measures. Ambassador Lodge, pushed by Trueheart, continues to disparage the Diem government. He has supported Trueheart's recommendations for cutbacks in both military and economic aid.

Foreign Flashes — Negotiations for the return of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor to Britain have collapsed, according to State Department sources. They reported that the Windsors now plan to live in Spain, where they are building a home near Marbella. The Duke requested Queen Elizabeth to confer the official status of Duchess on the former Wallis Simpson, but the Queen refused.

Adolf Hitler's interpreter, Dr. Paul Otto Schmidt, is leaving in Munich and operating one of the largest interpreter schools in Europe. Dr. Schmidt's school trains linguists for service with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the European Common Market... Czechoslovakia, while seeking large purchases of U.S. wheat, is pressing its international arms traffic throughout the world. U.S. intelligence sources report that the Czechoslovakian government is shipping arms to Portuguese Angola, the Congo, Venezuela, British Guiana, Haiti and Egypt. The Czech arms business is estimated at more than $50 million a year... Russia's offer to purchase wheat from the U.S. came at the same time that the Kremlin opened a new bank in Beirut, Lebanon. The bank is a branch of the Moscow Narodny Bank, Ltd., the principal Soviet financial institution operating outside of Russia. The Soviet has branches of this bank in London and Paris and is reportedly planning to ask the U.S. for permission to open one in the U.S. The expansion of this banking system, which is used to handle Soviet gold sales and espionage funds, indicates that the Russians are planning a new two-pronged offensive against the West in trade and subversive activities.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Doctors May Differ On Drugs

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The practice of medicine is not a definite science that conforms to rigid rules like other sciences such as mathematics or physics.

In the total equation of health and disease, variations occur that make medicine an art. The diagnosis and treatment of disease can never be determined with the finality of computer precision.

Attitudes about medicines, their uses, their values and their disadvantages sometimes have antagonists as well as devoted adherents.

Such a scientific controversy has existed among doctors about the use of anti-coagulant drugs after a heart attack.

Heart Attacks

Some heart specialists feel that it is an important factor in the prevention of further attacks. Others are considerably less enthusiastic about it.

There is, however, a common meeting point for these divergent views. All physicians insist that each patient must be considered on an individual basis.

Sound Conclusion

Out of the maze of conflicting evidence on the use of anti-coagulants, there will ultimately emerge a sound medical conclusion. This will then become acceptable to all objective students of medicine. Well-controlled experiments by scientific observers are constantly in progress. They can best evaluate the advantages of the sustained use of an anti-coagulant drug.

When anti-coagulant therapy is used, it necessitates a regular, unbroken pattern of blood tests. This constant contact with the doctor enables him to keep under surveillance not only the physical but the emotional balance of his patient.

DEAR ANNETTE: I've whelped a couple myself. But could your dog write?

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you published a letter from a truck driver's wife. It seems her husband came home from a run with a long scratch on his thigh. He told his wife it must have been caused by a sharp feather in the motel mattress. Wife was suspicious. And YOU, Dear Abby, didn't help matters much when you replied, "A likely story! They don't put feathers in mattresses anymore. It was probably the whole chick." Well, I have news for you. This morning I awakened with a handsome scratch on my backside. I know they don't put feathers in mattresses anymore, and since there were no chicks around, I investigated. I found they do put steel springs in mattresses these days, and one sharp coil had come loose and worked its way through to me!

Sincerely,
VICTIM

DEAR ABBY: The controversy about the Little League manager brought to mind this amusing story: A Little League pitcher had walked the first eight men at a bat. The manager sent in a new pitcher. Out of the crowd stormed the lad's mother. "What do you mean taking him out of the game?" she yelled. "He had a no-hitter going!"

ESSC Students, Faculty Comment On Hazing

By Jim Shafer
Daily Record Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — Hazing, a means of initiation, is a practice conducted on most college and university campuses in the United States. In many cases it is traditional, but today two schools of thought on the subject are found.

This year, in addition to wearing the "dink" — a small hat with the graduating class year on it — freshmen at East Stroudsburg State College were required to carry a cardboard box and, on the command of an upperclassman's cry "Alf! Raid," the "Frosh" had to get under the box and make believe he was shooting at airplanes. This is one example of hazing.

A reporter from The Daily Record went on the campus in East Stroudsburg with the question, "What do you think of hazing and hazing parties?" The answers varied.

Miss Alfreda Patton, a junior from Doylestown, said, "I don't believe in hazing parties. I feel they are of no significance to a college student. I do think that a regulated amount of hazing will help the college freshman to mature, and I feel it will also aid in making the person a better teacher."

"Dink" Committee
Miss Cynthia Barton, a freshman from Wayne, said, "I think it is ridiculous. There is no point to it. I was called before the 'Dink Committee' this year for an infraction of the rules, or so they said. While there I asked them what was the point in this hazing and they failed to give me an answer."

Miss Nancy Auer, a freshman from Doylestown, said, "Being a day student and commuting to and from the college from my home I have not been exposed to too much of the hazing here at school, but I feel that it is alright to a certain extent but that it should not get out of proportion or out of bounds."

Miss Carolyn Plevyak, a freshman and a day student from Stroudsburg, said, "I don't care for it at all. It's very humiliating to a person. A person comes to college for an education and I don't think this is part of the education they should receive while in college."

Should Be Abolished
Prentice Nothnagel, a sophomore from Pipersville, said, "Hazing has some good points but I feel it should be abolished. Hazing is a method of getting freshmen acquainted with the upper classmen. From personal observation I would say that most of the hazing is done by only a small percentage of the upper classmen and it serves no worthwhile purpose."

Jack Smith, a junior from Wilkes-Barre, said, "Hazing, when regulated, has its good points and this includes hazing parties. When the activity is regulated it becomes a form of entertainment for the freshmen. I don't think that it is done with the thought in mind to embarrass anyone. I also believe that it is a part of college tradition and that the people enrolling in colleges more or less expect it."

Robert McLaughlin, a freshman from Quakertown, said, "Hazing for me was good. I learned that if I was studying when upper classmen made their rounds looking for freshmen to run errands or some other form of hazing they would leave me alone. From this, an attempt to hide from them on my part, I established a pattern for my study habits while in college."

Faculty Comments
Members of the faculty were recently quoted in The Stroud Courier, a student newspaper published monthly at the college, on their feeling on the subject. Some of their replies follow:

Dr. Eugene Powers, head of the education department — "Hazing isn't sophisticated enough for college students. People who are supposed to be adults should treat others as adults."

Paul Hamel, assistant professor of English — "Hazing is stupid. The point seems to be just to torment people. I know of no benefits."

Jay Vogelbaum, associate professor of English — "What is the real purpose of freshmen hazing? How can it help the freshmen if it makes them feel humiliated? Though hazing is supposed to be an intelligent introduction to college life, very frequently, if not always, it consists of humiliation. I hope I stand with many other faculty members in opposing such maltreatment and ordeals which make freshmen feel less than human precisely at the time they should be getting some assistance."

William Eden, assistant professor of biology — "I am unalterably opposed to hazing as being undignified and undemocratic. Anything that tends to destroy human dignity isn't worth a d—."

Joseph Brennan, assistant professor of speech — "I think hazing is ridiculous, childish, perverted and no scholar or lady would ever participate in such a thing. In short, it's kid stuff."

Dr. John Wildrick, director of student teaching — "Hazing is outmoded; it's so old it isn't funny any more."

Charles McNett, assistant professor of anthropology — "Anthropologically, hazing is a survival of the 'rites de passage' that generally disappear when people begin living in cities. In our society it is used to teach people to take orders. I feel that this is hardly a proper occupation in an institution committed to producing inquiring minds."

If you can't decide between a new Ford or a Chevy,
consider what Ford's extra weight
does for your ride and your comfort

Our new '64 Super Torque Ford is over 200 pounds heavier than Chevy. For example, Ford has 64 pounds more heft in the body . . . 69 pounds more steel in the frame . . . 66 pounds more strength in the suspension than Chevy.

And Ford's weight advantage over Plymouth and Rambler is even greater. In fact, Ford's weight is almost up there with Pontiac's!

What does this mean to you?
It means a more solid, road-hugging ride. And it helps give you a far more comfortable ride—as smooth and silent as cars costing hundreds of dollars more!

And when you consider that Ford puts almost 70 more pounds of steel frame under you, you'll certainly agree that Ford's greater weight means greater peace of mind.

But don't take our word for it. Test-drive a Super Torque Ford yourself. See how Ford's extra heft contributes to Ford's total performance—and how it can add to your everyday driving pleasure. When you do, you're bound to agree—the weight of evidence certainly favors Ford this year!

Army Cuts Reenlistment Red Tape

STROUDSBURG — The U.S. Army is often charged with being bogged down with red-tape procedures. The Army had a chance to disprove this recently when an employee of the Inn at Buck Hill Falls tried to reenlist in the Army.

Last Friday at 4:30 p.m. David Frappier called M-Sgt. Donald K. Smith, local Army recruiter, informing the sergeant that he would like to reenlist in the Army. After talking to Frappier for a few minutes Smith determined that the man would have to reenlist that day in order to save his rank.

Arrangements were made to take Frappier to Wilkes-Barre and have the reenlistment oath administered there. Just when a lieutenant was about to swear Frappier into the Army, it was discovered that one of the records needed for reenlistment was in Frappier's home in Holyoke, Mass.

Without the record it would be necessary for him to take a complete physical examination. This was after 8 p.m. and doctors are hard to find at that time of night on Friday.

The Army went to work, however, and came up with a doctor and Frappier was reenlisted in the Army at 10 p.m. M-Sgt. and Specialist Four Frappier then returned to Buck Hill both feeling that it was the end of a perfect day.

WE HAVE OVER 100 VARIETIES OF CANDY

Just Between Us—

by Bobby Westbrook

It seems queer to have people raving about the pearly light of a cloudy day, to have them cooing and aching over a raindrop as they usually do over the first crocus, but it proves that you can have too much of a good thing, even sunshine when it stretches out to a drought.

Actually, it wasn't much of a rain — more like somebody spitting on a hot stove — but anyway it looked like rain for a little while. And the sunset was a remarkable thing too — primarily because we haven't had enough clouds to make a decent sunset for a month or more.

Anyway, it made a wonderful morning for sleeping. Now there's an odd thing. In the Spring when Daylight Saving comes in, it takes a week to make up for that lost morning hour. But it doesn't take two days to get used to having the extra hour to sleep in the Fall.

Humans aren't the only ones to be confused by the change in time. One prominent banker was rushing for home pell-mell. Meeting a friend all primed for a chat he apologized for rushing on:

"I have two dogs and a cat to feed," he explained, "and they won't believe the Daylight Saving time is over."

I guess that goes for a lot of us who continue to get hungry on Daylight Saving time. But it sure helps Mother enforce that bedtime hour — for a few days at least.

The early dusk speeds everybody at their evening chores and also speeds our consciousness of the approaching holidays. "If we don't get our Community Chest collecting done in the next two weeks, we'll be running into Thanksgiving," Ralph Reppert warned the volunteers last night. I guess maybe we'd all better get to work at anything that's supposed to be done before Thanksgiving.

Unless, of course, this turns out to be another misty, moisty morning.

Birthday Party Beats Baby Sitting

Delaware Water Gap—A night of baby-sitting might not seem to be the ideal way to spend your seventeenth birthday, but Jack Court, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Court found it so. Promising to stay with two children at the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Taylor, Cherry Valley Road, he found all of his friends assembled in the rumpus room for a party in his honor.

They presented him with a gift from the group, John Sip-troth had brought his drums and other instruments and furnished a band concert. Dancing and refreshments were enjoyed.

Guests included Isabel Man-nix, Beth Shoemaker, Linda Kitchen, Faith Lightner, Vicki Fisher, Darlene Ott, Diane Wid-dow, Leslie Younkin, Phil Far-ber III, Paul Runyon, John Sip-troth, William Buzard, Alan Brytogle, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Carrencia, Mr. Robert Kaiser, Mrs. George Court and Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Taylor.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

A note from Betty Mienshein reports that on her drive back to Hawley the other early morning, she once again encountered our big black bear, sauntering down the road. Says Betty: "Sure got a good look at him — too close!" . . . A note on my desk reports that all Wyckoff employees desirous of receiving flu shots may do so next Friday and Saturday morning prior to store hours. More and more business places are encouraging their help to have these shots, and it is a great idea. Not only can the flu be a lingering and uncomfortable thing, it can drastically cut down on attendance at work or school and on general efficiency . . . a friend of mine tells me she delights her numerous nieces and nephews each year by making Christmas surprises which she stacks in a large basket by her fireplace. When they come to call they help themselves, and the pleasure they take in their unexpected trinkets far surpasses the cost.

This is what she does: she saves empty bathroom paper rollers and covers them with colorful tissue or Christmas papers, closing one end to form the bottom. Into this cylinder she drops a variety of things — barettes, a pretty pin, beads, cuff links maybe, some candies, or anything else that will fit. Then the other end is sealed and topped with a bow, a paper face, or whatever her imagination produces. Sounds like a cute and clever idea, doesn't it, and one could find dozens of items to please both children and adults of all ages by browsing through Wyckoff's any day! . . . Speaking of Christmas, the Christmas Ideals and Christmas Greetings magazines are in stock at 1.50 and 50c, respectively. These are an excellent way of sending one's thoughts at the holidays to hospital patients, older people, shut-ins, or anyone else who likes Christmas stories, pictures, and poetry . . . Traveling backward from Christmas to Thanksgiving, I might suggest that our artificial chrysanthemums would make a most attractive bouquet for one's living room, or as a centerpiece for the table. They are very natural looking, and Anna Haller tells me that she will very happily make an arrangement for any customer who brings her a vase to be filled. (Or who selects a vase from our fine selection.) The chrysanthemums are 85c each. We also stock a big selection of other Fall flowers and foliage . . . When you're in the market for a small handbag to carry afternoons or evenings, you're almost certain to find something you'll like in our Handbag department. If for any reason you prefer to look farther, be sure to see the tapestry Deluxe Purses by Trina in our Notions Department. One style is beige with subtle coloring; the other is black with red, gold, blue, and green in the pattern. Just 3.00 plus 30c federal tax, these purses are smart as can be and a pleasing size . . . For the traveler, or the person going to business each day, our Notions department offers numerous appealing 1.00 items that would make practical as well as attractive stocking stuffers. For instance, one plastic box contains 8 Wash 'n Dri Pads in foil for cleansing hands and face, as well as 16 paper toilet seat covers. Another has 20 Pink Pads for the removal of one's nail polish — no bottle to tote, no muss, no fuss. Still another contains pads impregnated with Spot Chief to remove grease and lipstick from one's clothing in a jiffy, leaving no trace. There is another plastic container filled with individual pads that will shine one's shoes in a whisk. When you begin filling those Christmas stockings, do think of these — or give them to your wandering friends who are heading South (North, East, or West.)

Tanchyn Returned To Jail For Completion Of Sentence

STROUDSBURG — John Joseph Tanchyn, 45, of 513 Third Ave., Scranton, yesterday began to serve a six-to-12-month term in Monroe County Jail for involuntary manslaughter — for the second time.

Tanchyn was sentenced in August, 1962, for the deaths of Llewellyn F. Andre, 49, of Stroudsburg, RD 3, and Mrs. Anna Evans, 48, of 578 White St., Stroud Township, in an automobile accident on Route 611 on April 2, 1961.

He was jailed on July 11 of this year after Judge Fred W. Davis turned down his motion for a new trial and arrest of judgment, the State Superior Court upheld Judge Davis' verdict and the State Supreme Court refused to hear the case.

Tanchyn was released on July 29 after serving 15 days when the U.S. Supreme Court issued a writ staying execution of the sentence pending a decision on whether to hear the case.

On Oct. 14 the Supreme Court refused to review the State Supreme Court decision.

Judge Davis had sentenced Tanchyn to serve six - to-12-months on each of the two counts, with the sentences to run concurrently. He was also fined $1,000.

Tanchyn was represented by Atty. J. Joseph McCluskey of Stroudsburg and Atty. Thomas J. Foley, Jr., of Scranton during his trial and appeals. Dist. Atty. James R. Marsh was the prosecutor in the case.

He said, "The people of Monroe County are fortunate in having the opportunity of voting for such fine candidates." He singled out Monroe County District Attorney James Marsh as a man, "who has the unique honor to be a candidate for both parties with no opposition."

"Political parties are necessary to perpetuate democratic government. They are and should be a medium for public discussion of the issues. They must be composed of clean, dedicated citizens. Their object must be for the public welfare,

He told the democrats "Neither party can survive if it tolerates corruption, accepts financial support from gangsters, or attempts to corral its members into blind obedience to unworthy or unethical tactics."

Voters and Taxpayers

You have heard the statement—NOW HEAR THE FACTS.

Mr. Lesoine, is quoted as stating the last Republican Administration in the County left the County in "Financial Shambles." This statement must be rejected by those who know, or want to know the facts.

During the Republican Administration of this County, 1952-1955, the County was on a pay as you go basis. Debts contracted were paid for as they were made. Every County owned building was in the best of condition and all were paid for in full. There was no bonded indebtedness incurred by the Republican Administration, and the cash balances maintained were adequate for the County's needs.

No money was borrowed from any bank or lending institution during the Republican Administration in our County.

$5,510.93 improperly collected during the past Administrations by Office holders was returned to the County at the demand of the Republican Administration.

Would these facts indicate that the Republicans left the County in financial shambles.

The 1955 Audit shows a balance of $126,573.49 Is this shambles!

The 1955 Republican budget was $285,000. The Democratic budget as of 1963, was $820,000.00. What have the citizens of Monroe County received for this $535,000.00 added expense?

Examine your County Tax bills and you will find the difference in your taxes between the Republican Administration of 1955 and the so called progressive Administration of 1963. Progress with them four more years and we can progress into bankruptcy.

Vote for the Party that respects your tax dollar. Vote for the Party that guarantees you financial soundness in County affairs. This is the year to GO RIGHT! GO REPUBLICAN!

Jockey Breaks Leg In Spill

CHICAGO (AP) — Jockey James Ruyball suffered a broken leg and one horse was killed and another had to be destroyed Monday in a three-horse spill at Sportsman's Park.

Ruyball, 25, of Chama, N.M., was aboard Loveable John when the mishap took place at the top of the stretch in the eighth race. Loveable John suffered only bruises but Bud Nose, ridden by Calvin Stone, suffered a broken leg and had to be destroyed. Sun by Sun, ridden by Joseph Glorioso, was dead apparently of a broken neck when veterinarians reached the scene.

Stone and Glorioso escaped injury. Ruyball was taken to St. Anthony's Hospital.

It was the second bad spill at Sportsman's in two racing days. Jockey Jack Feselman suffered a broken collarbone in a similar spill Saturday.

Michigan Coach Sees Short Chain

CHICAGO (AP) — A measuring mistake cost Michigan's defense a vital two yards in Minnesota's touchdown drive for a 6-0 victory Saturday, assistant Wolverine Coach Jocko Nelson said Monday.

Minnesota drove 41 yards in 10 plays for the touchdown at the start of the second period. "When the Gophers got the ball, they had no gain on first down," Nelson told the Chicago's American Quarterback Club. "That point the whistle blew ending the first quarter. When the chains were switched, I looked up and saw that Minnesota had second down with eight yards to go. We lost two yards somewhere."

Hebert made his remarks in an open session before the subcommittee met in secret and approved the bill authorizing the money. The bill now goes to the full armed services committee.

Under the bill, the Defense Department would spend $1.1 on taking part in such civilian competition as the Olympics and Pan-American Games. The other $900,000 would be used for participation in meets of the International Council of Military world athletically. The Russians are subsidizing their civilian athletes directly. It is our aim to regain the supremacy we had over the years and this is one way to do it."

A House armed services subcommittee approved this amount, $1.2 million more than the Defense Department had to spend on international sports in the last four years.

"Most Powerful" "Let's understand what we are doing," said the subcommittee chairman, Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La. "Our objectives are to make the United States the most powerful nation in the

International Links Trophy Winner

Best 3 Straight Holes

PARIS (AP)—"Never in my life have I played three holes in a row like those."

That was Jack Nicklaus' own reaction to his fantastic burst of birdies Monday which carried him and the United States team to a double victory in the Canada Cup international golf matches.

In the fog-curtailed nine-hole windup over the Saint-Nom-le-Breche course, Nicklaus ran in five birdies—three in a row with unbelievable shots—for a four-under-par 32. That gave Nicklaus the individual International Trophy and with Arnold Palmer shooting a 34 the U.S. took team honors.

Nicklaus three-putted for a bogey on the eighth hole then missed a four-foot birdie putt on the ninth.

"I hated to miss those last two putts," he said, "but the one on No. 8 was a toughie—two breaks in the green. And on the ninth I wanted to play it safe just in case Arnie might miss."

Team Effort On Mind "I wasn't interested in my individual score. I wanted to be sure we won as a team."

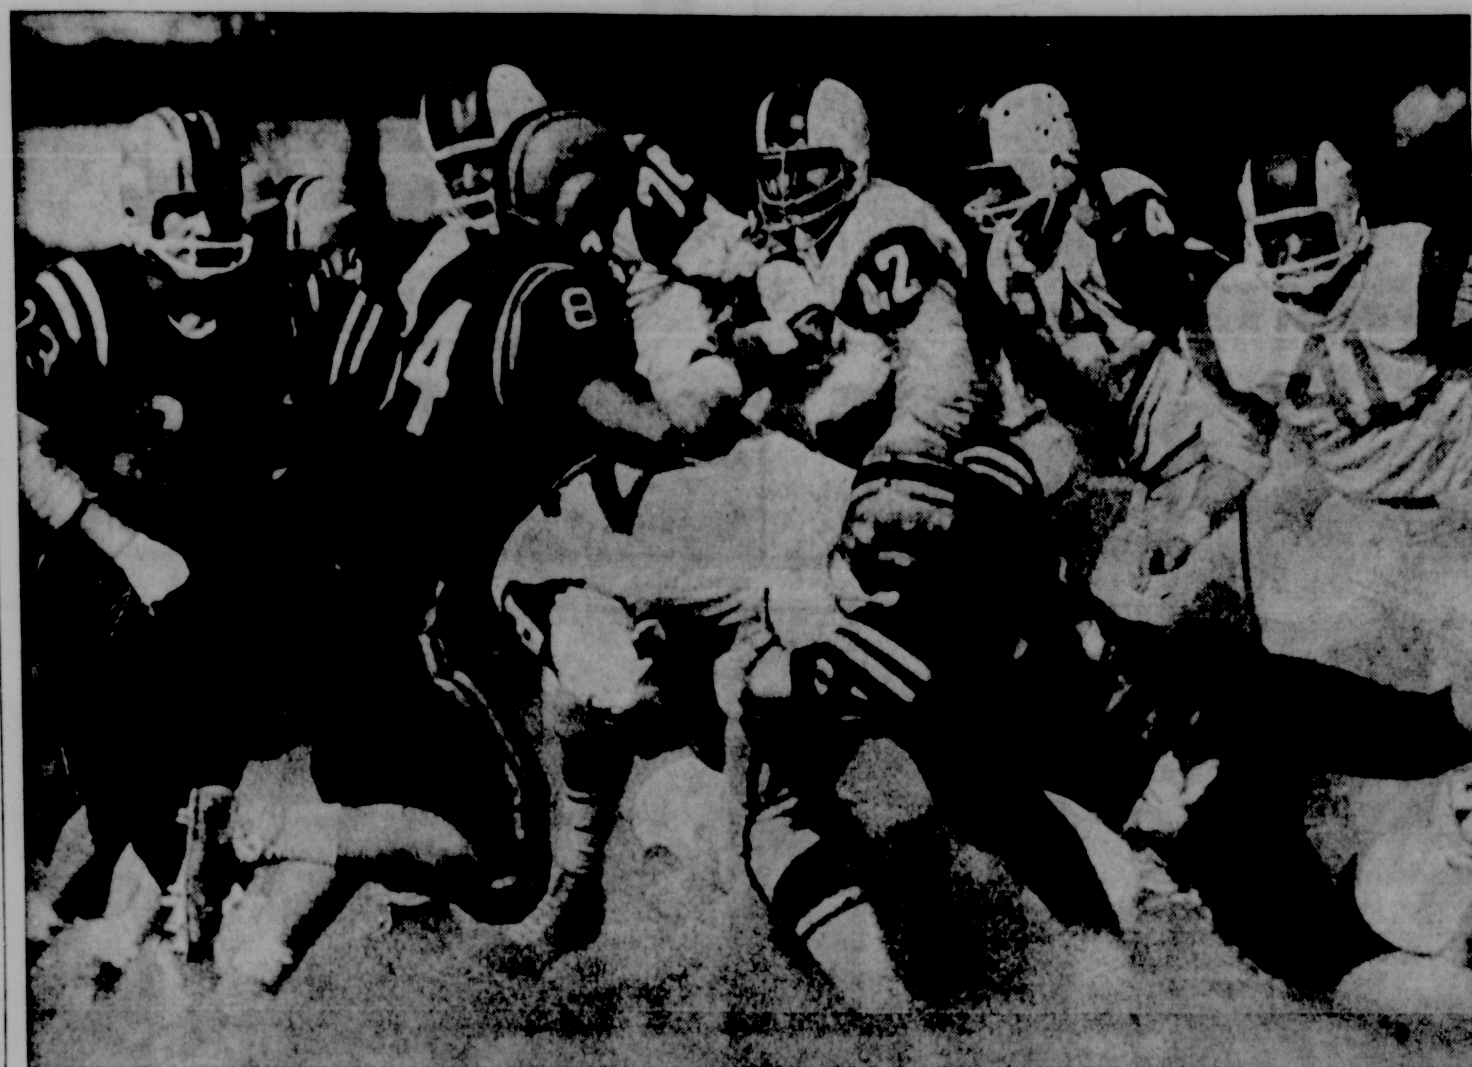

Nicklaus' miracle streak began on the 405-yard fourth hole, where he ran in a birdie putt of 20 feet. A pair of booming drives had set up easy birdies on the first two holes. On the fifth he holed another amazing putt—35 feet, downhill and over two tricky rises.

On the sixth, after Palmer had made a dazzling shot out of the sand, Jack holed out from a sand trap 70 feet from the pin. The ball hit the green once and plunked into the cup.

Nicklaus emerged from the trap holding both hands over his head.

With a broad grin, he told the cheering gallery, "I don't believe it myself."

POWER DRIVE BY TOBY — East Stroudsburg State's all-time scoring great, Toby Barkman, barrels his way for good yardage against Millersville State Saturday. It took four Marauders to bring down Barkman in this play. Toby scored three TDs against Millersville on spectacular and long runs.

Mr. Pigskin 'Tub Thumps' For Barkman

Little All-American Bidder

By MR. PIGSKIN

No football player at East Stroudsburg State College has ever been named to a Little All-American first team, but the Warriors have their best candidate ever in senior halfback Toby Barkman.

He has appeared in five games this season—but played only five minutes in one of those—and has scored six touchdowns to give him a total of 200 points in his four-year stint of competition in the Pennsylvania State Colleges Football Conference.

The old mark was set last year by West Chester's Joe Iacone who totaled 180.

But it isn't so much the number of points he has scored for good of ESSC as the spectacular manner in which he reaches paydirt so often.

Take Saturday's battle against Millersville, for instance. He was hit a half dozen times—once behind the line of scrimmage—but he spun away from tackler after tackler to sprint 61 yards for the game's first TD.

He scored the other two TD's, too, in the Warriors' 21-13 triumph—both on passes from quarterback Charlie Sierier. The third TD was almost as spectacular as the first. Sierier's pass was deflected by one defender but Tony hesitated, backtracked a step, scooped in the leather and raced goal-bent for another tally.

Someone mentioned before the game that Barkman was suffering from a cold. But after the game, Millersville was suffering from Barkman.

Around the Pocono-Slate Belt scholastic circuit the weekend activity was void of upsets. There was one big surprise, however.

Stroud Union's Mountaineers were not regarded as having any chance against a strong gridiron machine from Whitehall. But the visiting Zephyrs were forced to score two fourth-period TDs to gain a thrilling 20-14 victory over the boys of coach Jerry Stulgaitis before a disappointed Gordon Giffels crowd.

Whitehall led by a scant 6-0 margin at halftime, but the visitors trailed the Mountaineers by a 7-6 score at the start of the final period. The lead switched hands three times in the final session before Stroud Union finally bowed.

The Pleasant Valley Bears went over the .500 mark with a 2-1-1 record as they made their first varsity appearance at home a pleasant memory for their fans with a smashing 39-6 win over Minisink Valley.

Coach Wayne Hulsizer alternated backfields in this affair and as a result, no less than five boys tallied touchdowns. Lou Herfurth picked up a pair of TDs for the Bears while Del and Dale Kibler, John Kresge and Ken Bowman also got into the scoring act.

Hulsizer's biggest problem this year is keeping his boys "up" for each game. Through an oddity in the schedule, the Bears play one week, are off the next, play the following week, etc. But Wayne is still hopeful of keeping the team above the .500 level.

Down in Pen Argyl, the Green Knights have extended their winning streak to eight, including six this year. But it was no easy task for coach Elwood Petchel's juggernaut Saturday against Nazareth.

Fumbling the ball a total of seven times, the Knights practically handed the game to the Blue Eagles before perking up in the second half to score three touchdowns and a 25-14 win.

It is not like the Knights to bobble the ball so often. Another oddity: Pen Argyl made good on only one conversion of its four TDs. Usually, the Knights

High Ranking Boosts Team Incentive, Elliott Feels

CHICAGO (AP) — Being ranked high nationally boosts incentive more than it does the pressure to win, Illinois football Coach Pete Elliott said Monday.

The 37-year-old Elliott is basking in the warmth of an unbeaten campaign thus far, escaping the iciness of his first two seasons with the Illini—a 0-9 record in 1961 and 1-7 in 1962.

"The kids naturally watch our rating from week to week," Elliott said. "And naturally there is some pressure built up to keep doing a good job. But more than that, the ranking gives a confidence and an incentive."

"It can work both ways, however. An opponent will get a lot of incentive to try to knock off a ranked outfit."

"We are pleased to have made such a good start but we must make a practical view. We know we must get better to face our remaining schedule — Purdue this Saturday, then Michigan, Wisconsin and Michigan State."

Sports, known as CISM from its initials in French.

Nicklaus Birdies U.S. To Victory

PARIS (AP)—Jack Nicklaus sank putts of 20 and 35 feet and holed out a 70-foot shot from a sand trap for a phenomenal burst of birdies on consecutive holes Monday which brought the United States a double victory in the fog-curtailed Canada Cup International Golf Tournament.

The powerful, 23-year-old U.S. Masters and PGA champion from Columbus, Ohio, captured the individual title by three strokes with a nine-hole final round of 32, four under par, and with teammate Arnold Palmer, who kicked in with a 34, gave America its sixth team championship in 11 years and fourth in a row.

Normally scheduled for 72 holes, the event was cut to 63 when a dense, soupy fog crept over the beautiful Saint-nom-le-Breche course, 12 miles from the outskirts of Paris, and blanketed it with an eerie, gray gloom that limited visibility at times to 150 yards.

Wild Confusion

The same fog forced postponement of the final round Sunday and created a period of wild confusion Monday morning before directors finally decided to let the contestants go nine holes, come what may. At one stage, it appeared the entire last round might be canceled.

The U.S. teams of Nicklaus and Palmer finished with a 63-hole combined score of 482, three strokes ahead of the surprising Spanish team which was tied with America for the lead after three rounds, and 10 ahead of third-place South Africa, at 492. Canada was next at 495, then Australia 497 and nobody else close.

In the individual contest, Nicklaus' 15-under-par 237 gave him a bulging, five-stroke edge over Spain's Sebastian Miguel and South Africa's Gary Player, tied at 242. Spain's Ramon Sota was next at 243.

Palmer Ties For 5th

Palmer, his blade putter a slab of ice, was tied with Al Balding of Canada and Bruce Crampton of Australia for fifth at 245.

Nicklaus' two long putts and fantastic trap shot came on the fourth, fifth and sixth holes, bringing exclamations of "fantastique!" from the normally undemonstrative French gallery of about 500.

At this stage, Jack had a string of five straight 3s—birdies on five of the first six holes—and appeared headed for a sub-30 nine.

However, he pitched short on the long, par 5 seventh, three-putted the eighth for his only bogey and then missed a four-footer which would have given him a birdie at the ninth.

Sportsmen Club To Meet

Jewell Electric Receives '64 Appliance Line

Bob Jewell, pictured above, of Portland has just received the entire '64 line of appliances for RCA, Admiral, and Westinghouse. The set shown above is the '64 RCA Color model. Many improvements have been made in the complete line. RCA for '64 has a more slender color set to offer as well as the hookup intact in the set ready for the new U.H.F. all channel telecasts when they come out. RCA also contains space age sealed circuitry circuits. A new Magic-Monitor TV alert tunes off and back on remotely by hand control. RCA's "New Vista Tuner" offers even more clarity of sound reproduction for '64. RCA also makes Whirlpool refrigerators and washers, AM & FM radios, and Transistor portable radios which are all on display at Jewell Electric. Jewell has received the new Admiral line too now which has many innovations for this year. One that stands out is a portable television set no bigger than a school notebook and has a screen 11 inches in size. Jewell stated the transmission as being "amazingly good" for such a small set. The complete line of Admiral appliances are now on sale at the Portland store. Admiral makes black, white & color sets from 11" to 27" in screen size, and Refrigerators in the newest fashion of double doors the full length of refrigerator including freezer and refrigerator in one unit. Jewell Electric is also the distributor in the area for the full line of Westinghouse appliances as well as many famous brand small appliances just in for early Christmas shoppers.
